SORT OUT JOHN HYNES

John Hynes, head of An Post has attacked the workers of Rathmines Sorting Office.
According to Hynes, delays in the post are not due to his mismanagement and reductions in the workforce, but to workers absenteeism and their refusal to conceed overtime.
But workers are right not to be pushed around.
Hynes is one of a group of Government hatchetmen brought in on huge salaries to "sort out" semi-states and public services.
Their agenda is always the same, to attack workers jobs and conditions.
The service always worsens as a result.
As Managing Director of Dublin Bus, Hynes forced in one person buses and cut the workforce in half.
His only interest is profits and not working conditions or services.
But Hynes and his class can be beaten.
Postal Workers have great power. The threat of Dublin-wide action forced management to reinstate 30 workers in Ballsbridge last December.
No one should be forced to work overtime and staffing levels should be brought up to meet the needs of the service.
